SOME OBSERVATIONS

Sacramento, Sept. 12.

Dear News: When I wrote you a few letters a year ago while on a trip similar to this, it was at a time when The News was making its first appearance as a daily, and the thought in my mind was to boost it as an institution of value to Glendale (because I was then secretary of the chamber of commerce), rather than for any other reason. So many of my friends, however, expressed themselves as having read the letters with interest and pleasure that I will venture to send you a few more, with the hope that some of my experiences and observations may again (in small measure) serve to bring a few minutes of diversion from the daily grind as the paper is scanned at the evening hour.

I am not egotistical enough to think that I can write better than, or even half so well, as many citizens of Glendale, but when I am told that my letters "sound just like you talk," instead of being in the stilted, unnatural style of many who write, I am encouraged to keep at it a while longer.

Leaving Glendale on the evening of the 6th for Bakersfield, I was much pleased to find the weather there of the comfortable variety, although I was told that during July and the early part of August the mercury had reached at least 100 every day, a few times going to 112 and 115. They expect hot weather there, however, and don't live there for climate, but because it is a prosperous community and a good place to make money. The oil fields, live stock and ever-growing farming industry brings money and people into the town, and it is known as one of the best towns in the state. The war is cutting down shipping and the demand for oil, however, so that only a few wells are pumping and these may shut down soon unless the market brightens.

At Hanford the prices of peaches and grapes are reported too low for much profit, but the town is growing and the people prospering.

Fresno continues to be the metropolis of the San Joaquin valley. Most Southern Californians don't realize the wealth and variety of crops produced in Fresno county, the Coalinga oil fields also being in this county, and the metropolitan character of the town would be a surprise to anybody who hasn't been there recently. Fine, big department stores and hotels, with one ten-story office building, would be a credit to any city, and the autos and traffic almost remind one of Los Angeles. The latter city doesn't cultivate the business intimacy it should have with Fresno. Fresnoans are too prone to talk San Francisco, and to like to go there rather than to Los Angeles, and it is hard to buy a Los Angeles paper there, although Frisco papers are everywhere.

To stop at Merced without going over into Yosemite was again my tantalizing experience, till I reflected: "Who would want to spend the time and money to be in Yosemite three or four days when he has the climate and beauty of Glendale valley the year 'round?" With that thought I forgot (?) Yosemite.

The state fair opened here today. Coming in on an electric train from Stockton we stopped at the state fair grounds and I noticed some painters at work on a big sign opposite the main entrance, which reads: "Save California Industries—Vote No Nov. 3rd." So the opponents of a "dry" California are at work, and with the only semblance of an argument which they have, viz: The wine grape crop. To a thinking person such an argument will have no appeal when viewed in the light of the good to be secured by driving the liquor business out of the state, and I believe that even a large proportion of the users of it will be glad to see it driven out.

As I heard a trainman remark. "My brother-in-law is a drunkard, but every time the matter comes up he votes dry." Many a man who drinks moderately and some who are drunkards will vote for the home against the saloon. Herein lies the hopefulness of the situation.

I take train for Ogden tonight.

Faithfully yours,
W. B. KIRK.

TO BE WEDDED NEXT WEEK

On the evening of Tuesday, Sept. 22, Miss Mazie Kendall, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kendall. 1451 Riverdale drive, will be joined in wedlock to Mr. Phillip Hoyland of Los Angeles. The bride-elect will be unattended and only members of the two families and their most intimate friends will be present.

A BIG TOURIST YEAR

PRESENT OUTLOOK IS THAT THE COMING SEASON WILL BE GOOD ONE FOR STATE

All tourist hotels of Southern California report early and heavy reservations for the coming winter season, which is probably due in part to the attention which has been drawn in this direction in the east by the two expositions, in addition to the growing popularity of this locality among eastern people who want a mild climate and pleasant surroundings for a winter residence. But the promise for next summer is even better. The American tourists are equal to a good harvest in Europe each year. If the war continues into next year Europe will lose that income and California is bound to get a good share of it.

It is estimated that the tourists spend a thousand dollars apiece in their tour. Some go cheaper, others spend more. This year there were 120,000 in round numbers accounted for, and they probably spent more than the average, certainly if their losses on baggage and extortionate discount of travelers' checks are counted in, for there is a stack of trunks, suit cases and satchels at Cologne piled ten feet high around the cathedral, all belonging to Americans. Over 200,000 pieces of baggage had to be abandoned in flight. If the war cuts out the touring season next year it should have at least $120,000,000 for home consumption. Americans will have a chance to see their own country, and to visit the big fair at San Francisco. If there were small hotels with fare as good and prices as reasonable as are provided in Europe there would be many more tourists in this country at all seasons.

NORTH GLENDALE

Mr. Roy Smith, who for the past several months has been residing on Hawthorne street, Glendale, is now at home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Smith, of 922 North Louise street.

Mrs. A. M. Hunt of 1201 Viola street entertained as her house guest for the week-end and Monday Miss Ethel Emerson of Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Cresson Muller, Mr. and Mrs. George P. Rueter of Fairview avenue, with Mr. and Mrs. Lee L. Payne of North Louise street, formed a merry party who went to the circus Tuesday evening. Every department of the circus was enjoyed from the elephants to the pink lemonade and peanuts. After the performance the party went to the Hotel Angelus, where a delicious late supper was partaken of. The trip was made by motor and certainly the evening was a most delightful one.

Mrs. Robert Wilson of 1020 Stocker street has returned from Sausalito, Cal., where she went a few weeks ago to welcome a little niece, the daughter of her sister, into the family.

Mr. Chamberlin, one of the employees of Mr. C. H. Allison of oil-well fame in North Glendale, has leased the Bell property on Fairview street and with his family will occupy it for a home.

The many friends of Mr. Chester Conrad, who underwent an operation recently, will be very glad to hear that he was brought home from the hospital Tuesday morning and is on the road to speedy recovery.

Mr. Thomas Walters of Burchett street leaves Saturday for Sherman, where he has a position with one of the lumber companies there. Mr. Walters will vacate his property here and will locate his family in Sherman, where they will reside in the future.

Mrs. James Hoffman of West Second street entertained complimentary to Mrs. Eugene Haines with a prettily appointed dinner Tuesday evening. Covers were laid for the following guests who had the pleasure of the occasion: Mrs. A. W. Dow and Miss Jennie Cornwell of Orange street, Mrs. H. F. Fryer of North Pacific avenue, with the charming honoree, Mrs. Haines, and the members of the immediate family.

MONEY OR NO MONEY

It has been said that the attendance at Barnum & Bailey's circus the first of this week did not indicate hard times. Lack of funds never keeps anyone away from a circus.

TRUSTEES ATTEND TO MANY DETAILS

AN UNUSUALLY LARGE NUMBER OF QUESTIONS COME UP FOR CONSIDERATION OF CITY FATHERS AT MONDAY NIGHT'S MEETING AND DISPOSED OF IN USUAL MANNER

The regular meeting of the board of trustees of the city of Glendale was held in the city hall on Sept. 14, 1914.

Those present at roll call were President O. A. Lane and Trustees Chas. Grist, J. S. Thompson, A. W. Tower and Geo. E. Williams.

The minutes of the meeting of Sept. 8th were approved as read.

A letter from J. Niederer Co. was read, acknowledging the receipt of the award of contract for the library furniture and asking for a list of what is to be selected. Referred to the library building committee.

Applications to sell milk were received from H. A. Ellis in Verdugo canyon east of Verdugo road; Edw. M. Moore, 832 Dryden street, and J. E. Henderson, 1501 West Second street. Referred to the city manager and milk inspector.

A communication from the League of California Municipalities dated at San Francisco was read. It contains an invitation of city and town officials to the annual convention of the league, to be held at Monterey during the week commencing Monday, October 12, 1914.

On motion of Trustee Tower, Trustee Thompson and J. C. Sherer, city clerk, were appointed to represent the city of Glendale at this convention.

A written request by Robert E. Bodkin that the city of Glendale refund to C. Walker the fine of $10 imposed upon him by Judge Whomes on August 18th last, was laid over for further investigation. No reasons were given why such refund should be made.

A letter from W. I. Hollingsworth & Co., Los Angeles, was read, inviting negotiations relative to the municipal bonds of which the city of Glendale may have to dispose. Referred to the manager of the lighting and water department.

A circular letter from Chas. W. Kent & Son, addressed to the Glendale chamber of commerce, Glendale board of trustees and board of trustees of the Glendale city school district, explaining the writer's position in respect to their relations with the Carpenters' Union of Glendale, a controversy having arisen concerning the employment of non-union men and the alleged payment of wages at cut rates at the building of the new Glendale Union high school.

On motion the letter was received and placed on file.

Decision No. 1183 of the state railroad commission in the matter of the application of the Miradero Water company for authority to sell property to the city of Glendale, was read. Likewise decision No. 1784 of the state railroad commission in the matter of the application of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company for authority to sell certain property to the city of Glendale (referring to the plant of the Consolidated Water company).

On motion both orders were received and placed on file.

The city engineer submitted a recommendation that the contract for the work on Orange street be awarded to F. R. Sinclair, he being the lowest bidder at $3.44 per linear foot.

Trustee Thompson offered resolution No. 737, a resolution of award of contract of work to be done on a portion of Orange street, which was read and on motion accepted and adopted.

Miss Barrett, as a delegate from the California Dry Federation, addressed the board, asking for permission to put up posters for propaganda in favor of the "dry" vote in the windows of the city hall and the new fire house or in the offices therein.

The board did not deem it advisable to grant this request, inasmuch as these are public buildings and it would not be just to take sides with the factions.

Mr. Curtiss of 1641 Oak street addressed the board with the request that some attention be given to the flood water likely to gather at Pacific avenue and Oak street the coming season. He stated that considerable damage had been done to the streets and curbs in that vicinity and beyond the city limits on Oak street last year. His suggestion was that conditions might be improved by dividing the flood over Fifth, Colorado and Oak streets.

The matter was referred to the city manager.

Mr. G. B. Woodberry asked for permission to plant oak trees upon the frontage of his land on Verdugo road north of the reservoir of the Verdugo Pipe & Reservoir Co. The permission was granted.

With reference to the protests against the proposed work on Myrtle street the city attorney stated that Mr. Watkins, attorney for the protestants, had been unable to appear before the board at the time appointed and asked that the matter be laid over for another week.

On motion the request was granted.

Demands were referred to the finance committee. Demands previously referred to the finance committee were reported favorably by that committee and warrants were ordered drawn.

The city engineer submitted a map of the Verdugo canyon bridge assessment district, also a resolution adopting said map, and plans and specifications of said bridge and the protection work.

Trustee Thompson offered a resolution adopting a map, plans and specifications for the construction of bridges and protection work in Verdugo canyon, which was read and on motion accepted and adopted.

The city engineer suggested that the channel of the Verdugo canyon storm water above the turn at the northerly end of Glendale avenue be cleaned to prevent overflow during the coming season. He thought a number of Fresnos might be used, banking the sand to the sides of the channel. He was asked to submit a report of the cost of this work at the next regular meeting of the board.

On motion it was ordered that the city purchase of Mr. Lynch, city engineer, a tracing of a complete map of the city of Glendale to be used by the city for city purposes in the future.

On motion it was ordered that a panoramic view of the city of Glendale be taken, such view to occupy a space of one page in the anniversary edition of the Glendale Evening News soon to be issued, the city to provide the cuts for that purpose.

Mr. Burton of the Glendale and Montrose railway applied for a permit to install and operate an overhead trolley line in the alley in block four, town of Glendale, beginning about midway between Second and Third streets, and running north along the side tracks of the S. P., L. A. & Salt Lake railroad, this being for the purpose of transfer connections with the Salt Lake.

On motion of Trustee Grist the matter was referred to the city manager in conjunction with the city engineer.

On motion the city engineer was ordered to change and re-establish the grade on Brand boulevard at Lomita avenue, Maple street and Chestnut street to a line agreed upon between himself and the railroad engineers.

The city attorney reported on the subject of fixing the gas rate within the city of Glendale. He said he had written to the Southern California Gas Company for the information needed, but their reply was to the effect that it was difficult to comply with the city's request, as it would involve the taking of a complete inventory of their system, and while the company is now preparing such an inventory in connection with the question of rates in Los Angeles, they asked for further time and suggested that the matter be discussed with them. Mr. Evans suggested that the gas company be asked to give the city an instrument of indemnity, securing to the citizens of Glendale a refund of the amount between the rate that may ultimately be fixed and that actually collected.

On motion of Trustee Thompson the city attorney was instructed to follow this course.

Trustee Tower asked permission to use a portion of Dayton court for a basketball game next Friday evening.

On motion resolution No. 739, a resolution of the board of trustees of the city of Glendale declaring its intention to construct a reinforced concrete bridge upon Opechee way over the Verdugo wash, and also construct protection work along and in a portion of said Verdugo wash, was read and on motion accepted and adopted.

Adjournment.

A firm stand against bridge, tangoing and motion pictures by the Rev. Maxwell Hall, pastor of the First Christian church at Portland, Ore., has led to his enforced resignation.

Treated for a vermiform ailment, a valuable horse at Towanda, Pa., expelled from his stomach a live copperhead, drank when the horse was watered at a roadside.

COMPARISON OF TEMPERATURE SHOWS THIS MONTH TO BE BELOW THAT OF LAST YEAR

In a general way we people of Southern California feel that the summer of 1914 has been a very pleasant one, free from any excessively warm days. But perhaps we do not realize how kindly the "weather man" has dealt with us, and it may be interesting to look back at the record of the first half of September, 1913, and compare it with the current month, for September is admittedly, in this section at least, the most trying of all the so-called warm months. During the first 17 days of September, 1913, there were in Glendale 13 days with a temperature of 80 degrees or over and six days of above 90 degrees. The record of the year was upon the 17th, when the temperature was given by the weather bureau in Los Angeles as 108 degrees, while here upon the street the glass showed from 107 degrees to 110 degrees. From Sept. 1st to 16th, 1914, only 3 days gave a temperature of 80 degrees or above, the highest being 85 degrees on the 4th. It will be of interest to note that upon the 16th of March last the government thermometer at Los Angeles recorded a temperature of 94 degrees. While the summer season has been so delightfully cool and free from extremes of temperature, it is yet true that the year 1914 has not given us a well distributed rainfall. Though the earlier winter months were exceedingly wet ones, March, which has the largest average monthly precipitation of all months of the rainy season (3.08 inches), showed a precipitation at Glendale of only a little over one-half (.58) inch. April, May and June gave but very little rainfall, so that although the year's record is far above the average, yet the heavy rains came so early in the winter that the surface of the earth dried out earlier than is customary in seasons of much less precipitation. Fortunately, the cool days and foggy nights have prevented serious damage to crops from the cause mentioned.

T. W. PRESTON,

BAZAAR AT WHITE HOUSE

The White House restaurant has been transformed with decorations of flowers and fancy articles for sale into a festive scene. The occasion is a four days' bazaar for the benefit of the Lutheran church of this city and re-opening of the restaurant. Home-cooked meals are being served, the proceeds going into the building fund of the church. Many useful and pretty fancy articles are for sale and an immense white cake is the source of revenue, as everyone who sees it thinks ten cents cheap for a chance at such a delicious confection.

A very interesting feature of the bazaar is the Old Curiosity Shop, where many relics and articles of apparel of years long gone are on display. One who enjoys looking over antiques may spend a very pleasant hour here.

Members of the First Lutheran church and St. Mark's Lutheran church of Los Angeles are assisting and when the affair comes to a close Friday night there promises to be a goodly sum in the treasury toward the erection of a Lutheran church here.

ERRANDS EXPENSIVE

The very air is filled with the idea of "have the other fellow do the errand work." So much so that it has become exceedingly expensive to do business. Everybody demands that everything be delivered, from a package of pins up to a truck load of lumber.

The printer is by no means exempt from the curse of the errand or delivery system. It is deliver a copy of the paper, submit a proof of a calling card.

Everybody in business wishes to be accommodating, but it is a settled fact that the practice followed of demanding deliveries of five and ten cent articles is a bad one.

BAZAAR IS OPENED

The Ladies' Aid of the Lutheran church opened their bazaar Tuesday evening with a delicious chicken dinner. Many ornamental and useful articles are for sale. A beautiful cake from Russell's bakery greeted our eye. Ten cents entitles you to a number on this cake. The fishpond in the far corner proved quite an attraction for merriment and the visit to the curiosity shop was a pleasant surprise because of its exhibition of many rare and valuable articles.

Meals will be served all week. Ice cream and delicious home-made pies always on hand. Don't forget the place, 708 West Broadway, opposite the sanitarium.

LATE WAR NEWS

INCIDENTS OF EUROPEAN WAR REMAIN ABOUT SAME —HOPE FOR PEACE

Signs of peace. Four great nations willing to arbitrate—Great Britain, France, Spain and China. Japan holds back on account of anti-alien conditions in California. In the meantime the deadly conflict goes on about as follows:

LONDON, Sept. 16, 3:30 a. m.—A dispatch to the Reuter Telegram company from Berlin, coming by way of Amsterdam, gives the following statement of the German headquarters staff, timed 9 p. m. Tuesday evening:

"The battle which has been continuing for the last two days on the right wing of our western army extends today to the eastern armies in the neighborhood of Verdun.

"Until now the Germans have been partly successful in some parts of the extended battlefield. A general battle is still continuing.

"In the eastern war theater the army of Gen. Hindenburg is now reforming after the conclusion of his pursuit. Rumors that upper Silesia is about to be threatened are unfounded."

LONDON, Sept. 15.—The French official statement makes brief mention of the fact that the allied armies are in close touch with the Germans north of the River Aisne and in the neighborhood of Rheims.

In this territory Gen. Von Kluk's army is apparently making ready for a stand, while the other German armies under Von Buelow, Von Hausen, the crown prince and the Duke of Wuerttemburg are falling back, and in so doing are endeavoring to maintain an undivided front.

The French war department denies that the crown prince has ever bombarded Verdun, and adds that only Fort Troyon, which does not belong to Verdun's defenses, has been attacked, although lately it was relieved.

The British official press bureau gives out a statement on authority of Sir Edward Grey, secretary for foreign affairs, in reply to a communication issued to the press by the imperial German chancellor. The statement is based on the German chancellor's question as to whether England would have interfered to protest Belgium's freedom against France, and the answer given is that England would unquestionably have done so.

Russian official reports announce that no fighting has occurred in the last twenty-four hours in East Prussia and that the Russian troops, having extricated themselves from a difficult position, are awaiting further movements.

From Berlin comes the announcement that the efforts of the French troops to break through the right wing of the German western army have been repulsed after heavy fighting. Berlin also announces that the Austrian troops have repulsed the Servians all along the line of the River Save.

Among those who fell on the British side in the recent fighting was Brig. Gen. Neil Douglas Findlay, commander of the first division royal artillery, who gained a reputation for bravery in the South African war.

A Rome dispatch giving news from Albania says Montenegrin troops in conjunction with Servians have repulsed the Austrians on the Bosnian frontier. In the recent fighting the Austrian casualties were estimated at 4000.

An Austrian official communication received at Rome denies the reports of Russian victories over the Austrians and asserts that 100,000 Russian prisoners and nearly 500 guns have been captured.

Roumania is reported to be making advances to Italy for common action against Austria.

The Japanese troops who are marching against the German protectorate of Kiao-Chow in China have captured the town of Chi-Mo, a short distance outside of the Kiao-Chow zone. The first encounter between the German and Japanese land forces occurred at this point.

Reports from Washington describe government officials and diplomatic representatives as showing expectancy that the German emperor would make early answer to the informal peace inquiry made by the United States.

Silk hose proved an insecure bank for $13,000 in bonds for Mrs. Carl F. Williams when she returned to her home in Philadelphia from Cape May. A garter tore a hole in the hose and the bonds slipped out. The loss was not discovered until Mrs. Williams reached home. She notified the police and payment upon the bonds was stopped.

The idleness, shiftlessness, drunkenness, vice, crime, nine-tenths of which the liquor business is responsible for, becomes a direct charge on the industry, energy and enterprise of sober and industrious people, and they have a right to refuse to longer pay the bills.

PEOPLE JUDGE THE WEALTH OF A TOWN

by its banks. If they are located in modern buildings, well equipped to give first-class service to their depositors and well organized to insure safety, people speak of such a city as a rich and prosperous one.

The First National Bank of Glendale has had a most successful growth and offers its depositors every advantage and convenience of a metropolitan bank, but could be a still greater factor in the upbuilding of Glendale, if every Glendale citizen transacted his or her banking business in Glendale, for the reason that the funds of this bank are loaned to Home People on Home Securities and are at all times engaged in the upbuilding of local interests.

"DRY" POINTERS

West Virginia passed from wet to dry without any serious social or business upheaval. Breweries became packing houses, distilleries and saloons manufacturing centers large and small, employing sober people.

The beer and booze barons of California are having a harder fight than they advertise because of similar fights in other states, notably Ohio, with which state they are forced to divide the "funds" with which they intended to beat the drys here.

What a manly, open campaign the wets are conducting! Have you seen the long list of meetings for joint discussions with the drys? Guess not, nor will you see such list.

AN INTERESTING MEETING

Mr. H. A. Wheeler will address the voters of Glendale at the Union high school Friday evening, Sept. 18, under the auspices of the Young People's Auxiliary of the Dry Federation. Mr. Wheeler is a most capable and interesting speaker of much note.

One would think from the hue and cry made about more saloons and hotels as wet places "to accommodate the traveling public" that nobody traveled but guzzlers. This is sheer nonsense and is false pretense Hotels would exist without this and get a desirable patronage.

TRUE AND UNTRUE

By Occasional Correspondent

Having passed through a long siege of strenuous nerve-racking work in connection with his business, Mr. L. Lund, proprietor of the Broadway garage, having some business in Alhambra, determined to combine business with pleasure by taking in the Barnum & Bailey circus parade, which occurred in Los Angeles on Monday.

Mr. J. Fink, Glendale's renowned scenic and pictorial artist, who has recently been assisting Mr. Lund on some unusually high-grade work, happened to be ensconsed in one of Mr. Lund's easy chairs enjoying one of Mr. Lund's twenty-five cent cigars, a goodly supply of which he always has on hand for his friends and patrons, when the brilliant thought occurred to Mr. Lund, "Jump in and go along; we'll hit up some of the high spots!" exclaimed Lund.

Off they sped toward Los Angeles in high spirits. They had just begun to ascend the Los Feliz grade when "she" went dead. "Gosh dang it!" ejaculated Lund, "what in thunder is the matter now?"

After spending about a half hour inspecting the machinery, a kid who had been looking on peeped into the tank and exclaimed: "You boob, your tank's dry!" Lund and Fink each gave the kid a nickle and bid him "Beat it."

Upon securing some gasoline from a passing car, they made another start, arriving in Los Angeles just in time to see the tail end of the parade. Lund becoming hypnotized by a gorgeously gowned gypsy in a hourda on the back of a dromadary, followed in the wake of the parade to the grounds. Not having time and each being a nickle short in change to take in the big show, they paid a visit to the hoochee koochee dangers, indulged in a big schooner of real circus lemonade and started for Alhambra. All went well until as they were nearing Pasadena, when Mr. Lund had arranged to give Mr. Fink the surprise of his life by phoning ahead to the Hotel Raymond to have a swell dinner with all the fixings ready for them when they arrived. At this point several miles from a repair shop, the chain broke; notwithstanding that the ingenuity of both, as well as the most choice, as well as otherwise, epethets of the English, Irish and German language, were exhausted, the chain could not be mended.

Mr. Fink being adapted by nature for long distance traveling, set out for the nearest phone, some three miles distant, and called up his friend, Mr. Tupper of Glendale, beseeching him to come and tow them back home. Mr. Tupper, although exhausted by a long and arduous day's work in connection with numerous heavy real estate transactions, responded with alacrity. As about two hours had elapsed since phoning, being tired out by their efforts to get started, combined with narcotic effect of the bracing night air and the action of the circus lemonade, Tupper found the boys sound asleep in each other's embrace in their "dead" machine.

After attaching a howser, they made another start. As they were descending a steep grade, Lund in attempting to put on the brake, found that it would not work. He shouted to Tupper, "Get out of the way!" Tupper mistaking the command, jammed on the brakes, and the way that little Metz climbed that Studebaker would have been rare food for a movie film. After stopping at the nearest drug store and consuming several bottles of Peruna (Pasadena is dry), and disrupting about two square yards of court and other plasters over their anatomies, they reached home about 3 o'clock a. m., each affirming "never again." The results not being serious, we anticipate with much pleasure seeing them in their accustomed rendezvous in a few days.

EAGLE ROCK

Mrs. R. McNitt and Miss Purle Gillette entertained their friends on Saturday evening with a "different" party at the beautiful home of Col. Eddy on Colorado boulevard. Everything was "different" from the "three-deep" game on the lawn, with cider punch accompaniment through the peanut ranch to the final robbing of the farmer's watermelon patch at midnight. Dancing and games were indulged in until late, or rather, "an early hour." Those bidden to this happy gathering were Mr. and Mrs. W. Tupper of Glendale, Miss Catherine Zulauf of Hollywood, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Moshier, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Griggs, Mrs. Frances Gee, Misses Mary Richardson, Beryl Jeter, Susie Sanderson, Alice Hoyt, Jennie Cormack, Bronte Boren, Mildred Mason, Stella Hustis, Dorothy Beath, Erma Herzog, Miss Swan and Miss Hemstreet, Messrs. James Cormack, Howard Henderson, Avery and Howard Hoyt, Foster Borchgrevink, Frank Bessolo, Atrhur Brown and J. Hensel.

The big social event of the past week was the "hard times" country fair given Tuesday evening by the Twentieth Century Club on the beautiful grounds of Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Root at the corner of Hill and Satsuma avenues. The grounds were beautifully lighted with electric lights and booths, including the "beauties of twelve nations," represented by men dressed as girls; the "chamber of horrors" and "Blue Beard's wives," fortune tellers from different countries, the "bearded lady," little Tom Thumb and his wife, candy and refreshment booths and many others. There was a beautiful display of hand-made work, including laces, embroidery, painted china and old-time works of art. The guests were dressed in old-fashioned costumes and danced the old dances to well-known airs. This affair is one of a series being given to raise the new clubhouse fund and it proved a grand success, over $75 being realized.

The next Presbyterian prayer meeting will be held at the home of W. Koethen, Grand View avenue, tonight. A. G. Paul will act as leader.

Miss Ethel Connaught of Rosemary drive has returned home after having spent a month at Balboa visiting relatives.

Those from here who attended the Oskaloosa (Iowa) picnic on Labor Day were Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Howard and Mr. and Mrs. R. Henderson.

R. McNitt of West Colorado boulevard, who was in San Francisco on business, returned last Saturday.

Mrs. Carle Phinney and daughters, Marion and Catherine, have returned to their home in this city after having had a most delightful visit with the former's mother at Oakland.

A week ago last Friday a few ladies from here spent the day with Mrs. James Irving of Ocean Park.

We understand that two new instructors have been hired to teach at Occidental college, which will open Sept. 23.

School opened Monday, September 14, but let out early in the forenoon so the children who wished to could attend the circus. How very new and interesting was the temporary building to the small children, who will occupy it. We overheard some of their conversation, such as "Oh, aren't those new desks dandy and those blackboards, etc., aren't they awful nice?"

Until the Methodist church is ready for occupancy the Methodists will unite with the Congregationalists in the Sunday services. Last Sunday Rev. Soper occupied the pulpit and this Sunday Rev. Hoyt will preach.

Mrs. H. Ferdon of Linden way entertained a number of friends at her home Saturday evening in honor of her husband's birthday. Covers were laid for Mrs. J. Eagen, Miss Althea Eagen, Mrs. J. Murray, Mrs. J. Ferdon, Miss Rhea Ferdon, Mr. and Mrs. Roumalia, Mrs. Jennings, Mr. and Mrs. J. Palen, Mrs. Bigelow. Mrs. Ferdon was assisted by her sister, Mrs. S. Eagen.

Harry Phinney and Miss Williamette Hemstreet were married Tuesday evening at the home of the groom's brother, Dr. Carle Phinney on Fairmont avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Phinney will probably make their home in Eagle Rock.

Mrs. F. Scouten of Park avenue was hostess to the Five Hundred club Saturday and a most delightful day was spent. An appetizing luncheon was served out in the garden, after which the ladies spent the afternoon in playing cards.

J. O. C. PARTY FOR RECENT BRIDES

Thirty-two members of the J. O. C. class of the First M. E. church enjoyed a beautiful party given recently in honor of the newly married or, more nearly correct, "brides" of the class, who are now introduced to the unsuspecting public as Mrs. Vera Butterfield, Mrs. Mary McDonald, Mrs. Martha Tarr, Mrs. Lillian Sherman and Mrs. Lilly Matthiesen.

This merry event took place in the home of Mrs. Viola Wright, 235 South Louise street, who with her daughter, Miss Helen, assisted in transforming the entire home into a bower of hearts, blossoms and greenery. Roses of pink adorned the living-room, and in the brides' room masses of green and white were used. The dining-room glowed with dozens of hearts, which hung in graduated festoons from the ceiling to the four corners of the room. Tiny hand-adorned pink hearts were given as souvenirs.

The entire evening was filled with joy and fun, music, games, a Swedish mock marriage in costume, and a clever floral wedding contest, for which Mrs. Lilly Matthiesen was awarded a handsome prize, having been the source of amusement.

At a late hour delicious buffet refreshments, the ices and cakes of which furthered the pink and white motif, were served by the hostesses and following committee in charge, Miss Alice Watson, Miss Marguerite Flower, Miss Barbro Askeland, Miss Laura Erling, Miss Lora Maxwell, Miss Knox and Mrs. Anna Starkey.

"REBECCA OF SUNNYBROOK FARM" TO BE GIVEN

Under the auspices of the Baraca-Philathea classes of the Central Christian church of Glendale, Miss Bertha Jackson, recently arrived from Kentucky, and well known in dramatic and club circles, will with the assistance of members of the Tuesday Afternoon Club and other local musical talent, give a most interesting and enjoyable entertainment in the Masonic temple at 8 o'clock Saturday evening, Sept. 19. Miss Jackson's feature will be "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," and promises to be something of exceptional merit.

Tickets for this offering may be procured at the door for the small sum of twenty-five and fifteen cents, adults and children respectively (almost a case of something for nothing).

AFTERNOON OF AUCTION

A most enjoyable afternoon was spent in the home of Mrs. William Harvey, Jr., 157 West Tropico avenue, Tuesday, when that charming lady was hostess to members of the Tropico Bridge Club, entertaining them as she did first at luncheon and then with auction, for which Mrs. A. L. Bancroft scored highest and received a handsome royal Dalton jug.

Everything was attractively carried out in pink and white, the rooms having breathed of the pungent aroma of carnations, which lent their delicate beauty for the occasion.

Besides Mrs. Harvey, those who gathered about the festive board were Mrs. T. W. T. Richards, Mrs. A. L. Bancroft, Mrs. Arthur Lewis, Mrs. J. Herbert Smith, Mrs. Omar Richardson and Mrs. William C. Mabry, who will entertain the club as guests in her home, 115 East Acacia street, Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 29th.

MADE $575,000 IN DEATH VALLEY

In the "Interesting People" department of the September American magazine appears a sketch of H. H. McVaughaen, an old-fashioned prospector who has just come back to civilization after thirty-five years spent in Death Valley as a prospector. He brought $575,000 back with him and a world of experience. Following is an extract from the article:

"In 1879 McVaughaen was living in Bakersfield, California. In that year his wife died, and that, he says, was what made him a wanderer and sent him into the silence of the desert. Death Valley is one of the most treacherous and lonely stretches of country on the American continent. It was given that name after a party consisting of several families moving across country by wagon to California perished there, a half century ago, of thirst and hunger. Those were not the first victims nor the last.

"Into that sinister country McVaughaen went in 1879. Rutherford B. Hays was president that year. Since then wars have been fought and states admitted to the union; hamlets have grown into cities; thousands of miles of railroad have been completed; national disasters and national rejoicings taken place; wireless, phonographs, aeroplanes, moving pictures have become common; the facilities for the interchange of human thought have made their advances; the popularization of art, letters and social betterment has had its successes.

"But cut off from this, living continuously, as it were, in the year 1879, McVaughaen spent thirty-five years of his life by himself, prospecting in the desert. The first good claim that he opened up was one hundred and twenty-five miles from a railroad, the nearest point being the Prumper ranch in the extreme eastern part of the desert.

"There is no degree of hunger, thirst or loneliness that this man of '79 has not experienced. He is well acquainted with them all, and with a good many forms of danger besides. But he was born to hardships.

"His childhood was spent on the frontier, and when little more than a boy in 1861 he went into the government service as a scout and messenger. The government still pays him $775 a year. In a pinch he would be a valuable man, for he speaks several Indian languages fluently, besides Spanish and its Mexican variations.

He does not consider the $575,000 a sort of reward of merit, as in stories, for his years of industry. He looks on the money as merely incidental to the romance and the adventure that has made up his life. The money might have come and it might not; it does not make a great deal of difference either way. Now that it is here he intends to devote most of it to educating some nephews and nieces and getting them started in life.

"During his years in the desert he located eleven good claims. These he recently sold to Schwab & Co., and that accounts for the $575,000. The mines are gold, silver and copper."

PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS MADE SELF SUPPORTING

Nothing is more hopefully marked in the advance of the administration of institutions for the custody and care of public dependents, we believe, than the increase in their contribution toward their own maintenance. Humane considerations are joined with public economy in the demand that the inmates be usefully employed. The old notion, and one coming down to a quite recent time, possibly not yet wholly outworn, was of setting aside those who for any reason were counted unfit for normal associations and self care and assuming their support in complete idleness as a necessary public burden. The first step away from it was the result of the discovery, which is a wonder in being so slow, that the dependent was bettered by active employment. The skill developed in certain crafts in some of the institutions speaks for the worth of the change in its accompaniment of a happier state for the inmate. Interest and pleasure in useful employment are newly revealed as primary in humankind. Turning this fact to the public account is the next step in prudence and it well engages the attention of the state.

The governor of Massachusetts, a commonwealth which early asserted and has all along proved its leadership in the development of institutions, has recently taken strong ground for making them more largely self supporting. There can hardly be an estimate of how far they may be brought toward complete self-maintenance. The prejudices of an older time and interests that regard the useful employment of unwaged classes as unfair competition still resist the full enlistment of the dependent population for industrial production. The institutions are in many instances, we think, held to trades that keep those engaged in them the busiest with the least output. Hand crafts that have been industrially discarded are used, largely for the reason that they do not replace the work of the self-dependent worker. But a common interest is moving against the restriction.

Here would seem to be a field for the working out of the community interest which not only considers the dependent as deserving the fullest humane consideration, but seeks the lifting as far as it may be lifted of the weight of public support.

HOW SOUTH AMERICANS FIND AMUSEMENT

When intercourse between the United States and South America was less marked than it is today casual travelers returning from Buenos Aires or Rio de Janerio often surprised their friends at home by telling them of the metropolitan centers of population which they had visited. Emphasis was placed on the outdoor activity of the people when not at their daily tasks. Magnificent botanical and zoological gardens, broad avenues stretching for miles along the water fronts, parks where the choicest of music was to be had for the listening; such have for years been among the features of South American urban environment.

No less active in municipal embellishment than in other years, countries like Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay more recently have developed tastes that demand an extension of the amusement program, and many of the things that formerly were looked for abroad only, are now to be had at home. In the matter of summer resorts, for instance, there has been an increasing exodus to localities where bathing can be enjoyed to the best advantage. Athletics have been finding greater favor among the South Americans, and golf is a recognized pastime, with baseball, tennis and other sports becoming every day more popular. Having arrived at a stage in their progress where they may be allowed to take a perspective view of their economic advance, South Americans, it would appear, are now inclined to set aside more time for play.

Uruguay, with its unsurpassed beach resorts and hotels that equal the best found anywhere along the Atlantic coast, is also a favorite gathering place for the people of Argentina who have to cross the River Platte in order to enjoy the hospitality of the neighbor. Near Buenos Aires, however, there are many places that invite a visit. Colonel Roosevelt, following his South American tour, spoke with particular enthusiasm about the Rio Tigre, its boating and its picnic crowds. The Mar del Plata Golf club is an institution that has become widely known.

Visiting the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco, South American tourists no doubt will find there many interesting things to please them. To begin with, most of the countries to the south will have elaborate displays and separate pavilions that will furnish national centers on alien soil for the moment. Europe seems likely to have comparatively few western world visitors in the months ahead, and as travel is popular with the more affluent South Americans they may find it a pleasureable advantage to turn northward when all the world, as it were, will meet around the Golden Gate. For more than a year leading hotel owners in the United States report, there has been a constantly increasing travel from South America, and the bonifaces are delighted on discovering that as guests South Americans are not to be surpassed, since they seem to appreciate it highly when things are done to make them comfortable and to augment the pleasure of their stay.

A NOTICE TO FISH AND GAME EXPERTS

The California Fish and Game commission, believing that education as to the necessity and value of game protection and preservation is a more efficient means of conserving the state's game than police patrol, has inaugurated a bureau of research and publicity. Dr. Harold C. Bryant of the University of California has been placed in charge of the new work. The function of this bureau will be to find ways and means of protecting and preserving foreign and domestic game birds within the state and to dispense information relative to game by means of correspondence, public illustrated lectures, and by the issuance of bulletins dealing with the status of game. A study will also be made of the habitats, habits and breeding seasons of the different game birds and mammals of the state so that a basis for sane game laws may be offered.

Laws and police measures, though necessary, are not so effective for the preservation of game as an enlightened public sentiment. This new move of the commission will hasten the day when a large force of wardens, making hundreds of arrests yearly, will not be necessary.

ORIGINAL AMERICAN DESIGNS IN SILK

A thought that asserts itself in connection with the exhibit of original designs in silks at the national museum in Washington is that the manufacturers of fabrics in the United States have frequently displayed an ability, if they have not always shown an ambition, to respond to the beckoning of opportunity. Perhaps it would be more nearly correct to say that they have never failed to rise to the demands of necessity. In designing silk patterns illustrative of Aztec and early Indian history an American manufacturing firm, perhaps, was neither inspired immediately by opportunity nor impelled immediately by necessity, but moved rather by an art impulse; yet the deduction must be the same; the ability is present, no matter what the incentive, or whether it be active or dormant.

It was this inherent ability that enabled the country at different trying periods in its history to do for itself in cases where before it had looked to others for supply. One of the great deterrents to American industrial progress along certain lines has been the ease with which the country could employ others to do for it the things it would much better have done for itself. This we are convinced has affected the manufacturer and the merchant as certainly and as seriously as it has affected the ordinary consumer. The United States as a penalty for the easy accumulation and diffusion of national wealth has suffered, and is suffering today, from lack of the satisfaction and joy that goes with the legitimate employment of native talent.

Nobody, we feel sure, who is informed with regard to the national aptitude for original effort will doubt the ability of the United States to meet whatever deficits may be caused by the present unsettled condition of industrial Europe. To the Mexican difficulty is attributed the inspiration of the Aztec designs in silks. It will be at least interesting to watch for manifestations, in fabric and other forms, of original ideas resulting from or prompted by the closing of European sources of supply.

HOME LIBRARIES PAST AND PRESENT

The multiplication in recent years of large libraries, publicly or privately maintained, has exercised a much greater influence over home book collecting that is generally supposed. This statement has reference just as directly to the character as to the size of the average private library, and in the change already wrought and in the change that is steadily taking place the modern factor of specialization may be regarded as a silent but none the less potent force. Specialization in book collecting and library management began above and is working downward. There are and probably always will be great general libraries, like that of the British museum, like that of Paris, like the national library at Washington—like the public libraries to be found in all parts of the world, the patronage of which represents a widely diverse need and a still more widely diverse taste—but it has come to be recognized as a fact that recent library foundations of consequence provide for some specific purpose.

Thus, in some of the cities where library duplication has long been the rule, the tendency is toward a divison of the field. Chicago was among the earliest of the larger communities to differentiate its libraries. The public library proper was granted the general miscellaneous province; the Newberry library was set aside for works of reference on music and art, the John Crear library for works of reference on technical subjects. Special libraries have been established in recent years in practically all the important American cities, and the wisdom of making separate and distinctive collections of books of reference is now generally conceded by students as well as librarians.

A similar tendency affects the home library in these days. There is no longer necessity for stocking up one's book shelves with volumes covering the entire range of human knowledge. Within ready access of the city man of today are public collections of books covering all subjects. These provide him with fuller, and usually with later, information than he could extract from any private library. Light literature is plentifully supplied through the public and circulating libraries, or it is cheaply supplied by the publishers. The mass of it being ephemeral, it is seldom permitted in these days to cumber the home book shelves. Eliminating, therefore, the technical and the heavy and the light and the trashy, the average book lover is free to gather around him in his home library the books of which he is really fond, be they old or new, in sets or singles, discursive, disquisitonary, expository, historical, poetical or romantic. The ideal home library collection is composed of permanent companions and friends, of books that are liked for their own sake, treasured for the comfort they have given in the past, prized for the associations they recall. The home library, that is to say, is no longer merely a series of shelves open or glassed in, containing a lot of bound volumes that have become part of the home furniture and perhaps the least useful part of it.

TO PROLONG LIFE OF PLANTS

Many persons are unsuccessful with house plants because they do not give them enough fresh air. The atmosphere of the ordinary living-room is both too dry and too warm for the average potted plant, and the room is usually kept so tightly closed during the cold months that the air is seldom pure.

Plants of all sorts, whether they are raised indoors or outside, must have an abundance of fresh air. Two or three times a day open some of the windows and allow new air to enter the room. Lower one or two windows an inch or more every day when the outside temperature is not very low. On all mild days in winter throw open all of the doors and windows. You will be surprised at the difference it will make in the vigor, color and growth of the plants when they do have all the good air they need. Good air, good light, good soil and plenty of moisture are the living requirements of all plants.

Keep a box of rich earth in the house for repotting plants during the winter. Fresh earth added is always beneficial to plant life. When preparing, heat the earth to kill worms. If you want sturdy house plants give them plant food. Ammoniated bone meal is a good fertilizer for house plants. Beware of the fancy jardiniere. It is responsible for many decayed roots. All plants with shiny surfaces can be washed with soapsuds containing a little olive oil.

Instead of carrying potted ferns through winter after winter, so that they get worn out, give them an occasional rest. Cut them down close and you will be surprised to see how they will reward you in the spring by leafing out with renewed vigor.

To keep a rubber plant in condition, it must have plenty of earth, plenty of water and a shower bath once a week. When it has dried, after the bath, wipe the leaves and sponge them with milk.

If your palm is infested with scales wash the leaves in a weak solution of soapsuds. After several washings at intervals of a few days apart, you will find that the scales will disappear, the palm will look fresh and green, and make a new growth. An occasional bath of this sort will keep it in fine condition.

GEOGRAPHIC SOCIETY TELLS ABOUT CANAL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—The National Geographic society has issued a statement of the probable effect of the Panama canal on the commercial geography of the world, as follows:

It seems that the Panama canal will carry most of the freight passing between the eastern coast of the United States and the western coast of Latin-America, and that the shorter distance and lower rates which it offers will greatly increase that trade; that the trade between the eastern and western sections of the United States will be greatly increased and transported at a much lower charge; that it will sufficiently shorten the distances to Japan, northern China, Australia and New Zealand, to increase steamship service and enlarge the traffic with those countries, and that the European countries will use the canal in most of their traffic with western America and in exceptional cases with northern Asia, Australia and New Zealand.

The canal has shortened travel routes between New York and Yokohama by 3750 miles; between New York and Shanghai about 2000 miles; between New York and Australia about 3000 miles, and between New York and western South America by from 3500 to 7000 miles. It also reduces the distance from Europe to western South America by more than 5000 miles. International commerce doubled in the 30 years following the opening of the Suez canal, and business and personal inter-relationship between the Occident and the Orient was increased in like proportion. Will similar results follow the like shortening of trade and travel route by the Panama canal?

Highways of travel on the ocean are influenced by surrounding conditions just as are those on land, so that the shortest distance between two given points is not always the best. Plentiful freight supplies, interchangeability of the products of the countries forming the termini of the routes, shipping places on such routes, plentiful coaling stations and cheap coal of a quality suitable for steamship engines, and even favorable winds and ocean currents are among the factors contributing to the success of routes of travel upon the ocean.

The sections of the world which may be considered as probably within the benefit of the Panama canal are the eastern and western coasts of America, the eastern coast of Asia and the islands of the Pacific. All of western America is nearer to Europe than formerly, and all of western America and most of eastern Asia and Oceanica are nearer to the eastern coast of America. A study of the production and consumption of the various countries lying within the canal's sphere of usefulness shows that their various products are thoroughly interchangeable. A study of distances also shows that both New York and New Orleans are now so much nearer to all of western America than is Liverpool that we may expect an increasing share of the trade of that section to fall to the lot of eastern North America; that the eastern ports of the United States are considerably nearer to Yokohama, Melbourne, Sydney and Wellington than is Liverpool by her shortest route, but that Liverpool is still nearer Hongkong and Manila than either New York or New Orleans via Panama.

One of the most important results of the opening of the canal will doubtless be found in its effect upon the movements of merchandise between the eastern and western sections of the United States. The facts at hand seem to justify an estimate of about 3,000,000 tons per annum of freight moved by rail and about 500,000 tons by water from the Atlantic coast section to the Pacific coast section, and about an equal amount from the Pacific coast section and Hawaii to the Atlantic coast section. The freight charges on these 7,000,000 tons are estimated at from $250,000,000 to $300,000,000 a year. The canal will take large amounts from these charges.

WHERE THE VANGUARD STANDS

Against the proposed eight-hour amendment to be voted upon at the November general election. The drastic measures proposed would work an injury to nearly every interest in the state and would restrict the liberties that have been accorded the American people since the days of our forefathers. For the common good vote no on the eight-hour amendment.

Against the proposed city and county consolidation amendment. This is a scheme of a few Los Angeles politicians to gobble up all outside territory for the purpose of increasing the bonding privileges of that already bond-burdened city. There is absolutely not one advantage to be gained to the now outlying towns by consolidation with Los Angeles. The promises made by the consolidationists cannot be kept by them—they cannot "deliver the goods." To maintain your community identity, independence and taxation burdens without representation vote no on this amendment.—Venice Vanguard.

MODERATE ABILITY

The art of being able to make a good use of moderate abilities wins esteem and often confers more reputation than greater real merit.—La Rochefoucauld.

Former Governor Francis of Missouri has declined the Argentina ambassadorship on account of a pressure of private business in St. Louis. This pressure seems to be felt throughout the entire west and it has the virtue of centering the thought of prominent men of the region on their home affairs.

There will be little necessity for sending American gold to Europe if only the way shall be opened for the delivery there of American wheat.
